His first case was that of a woman eight months pregnant. Diarrhoea: temp, in morning 39 C.; in evening 40; pulse 120; bronchial-catarrh; roseoloid exanthema; delirium were the symptoms. Acting on the theory of Barteln and Brand, that the danger in fever depends on the increase of temperature, and fearing lest the plan adopted to reduce the temperature by wrapping in wet sheets might excite uterine contractions, he applied wet cloths to the spine. This diminished the heat, and was followed by sleep. She did well for three weeks, when there was a slight relapse. A healthy girl was born at term; and puerperly was gone through without accident. The second case was that of a woman seized in her seventh month. The fever was intense. Wet cloths were applied whenever the temperature rose to 40 C. At the...
