State and local partners must also understand how to access the information ITACG produces. It might be, as my staff has pointed out, that there are just too many ways to distribute information and people dont know what the best way is. Once it overcomes the struggle just to push intelligence reports out the door, ITACG staff and the advisory council can improve communication and feedback with our partners on the front lines. Part of the problem, too, is that the classification process is incredibly difficult to navigate. As the ITACG evolves, State and local input will improve. Virtual networks show promise for uniting State and local intelligence communities and law enforcement. Attracting the next group of police and sheriffs officers to the ITACG detail has also proven extremely difficult. It is true that it is a hardship for many to move to Washington. I would observe as a Member of Congress that sometimes it is a hardship to serve in Washington. But nonetheless, I think that if awareness is raised, there will be a number of hardy souls out there who think that it will be an important experience and who can accommodate moving here for a year or 2 with their own families. Next week, I will be speaking, and maybe some of you will be too, at the National Fusion Center Conference in San Francisco. NCTC is evolving into its own sort...
