Greed, jealousy and hunger for power are a deadly mix when individual freedom versus group desires clash in this mountain subdivision. This mystery book is a whodunit that tests the readers powers of deduction. December at the Chases dude ranch in the North Carolina mountains draws more skiers than horseback riders so Jemma Chase turns from leading trail horse rides to her other two passions carpentry and photography. Word of Jemmas skills with wood spreads to a development at the top of an Appalachian mountain where she hears complaints about the Property Owners Association president. The POA President, Petula Windsor, has the other women in the development riled up by manipulating some owners to go along with her vision for the development. The Windsors house is broken into; cash as well as a private investigator file is stolen. Jemma struggles with her CSI wannabe urges; after all, shes applied for a job with the communications section of the sheriffs department, and Detective Tucker, her detective as everyone kids her, has emphasized that butting in an ongoing investigation can jinx her chances. Petula hires Jemma to build cabinets in her guest house. When Jemma comes to collect the check from the husband, she smells smoke. The guest house is on fire; Jemma risks her life to pull out Petula but it is too late. A simple break-in has escalated to murder. Jemmas CSI wannabee desires are mostly kept in check by Detective Tucker. Its hard, however, when the investigation involves so many people she has recently come to know, and she keeps pestering him for details. Her interview with the sheriffs department went well and Detective Tuckers attraction to...
